

The Virtual Private Library's History

In February 2003, the Virtual Private Library was officially launched with express mission to provide Internet users with the latest and most in depth subject specific resources, delivered in the form of blogs for easy access by the Internet populous. The first incarnation of the Virtual Private Library had only three Subject Tracer Information Blogs. Today, it now acts as the exclusive gateway to more than 50 comprehensive subject tracer blogs, with many more on the way. According to Zillman, "The future of the VPL is to continually expand the number of exciting, new and compelling subject tracers to the world!"
